WHAT'S IN A NAME? THAT WHICH WE CALL A ROSE
BY ANY OTHER NAME WOULD SMELL AS SWEET

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

The Name of the Game is...Money...For Us

Did you read the Centre of the Varsity, November 22, 1968? It gave a detailed report of the OSAP march of the previous Wednesday and illustrated the student demands on the government for more money. The government replied that they were going to tighten up the purse strings and reduce the education costs. This meant a reduction in student loans.

In this educational year, the clash between the administration and the students led to the dubious formation of the CUG to represent the students in the formation of university policy. This meant among other things the control of university money.

It is a fact that on a ratio basis, Canada spends more money per student than almost any other country in the world. Compared to the United States, we have fewer people of university age in our post-secondary institutions. The United States on the other hand spends relatively less money per student on a ratio scale. Granted that the education standards of our southern neighbours may be less than the ones we experience here, the relative expenditures are grossly out of proportion. Something must be done and the answer is with the students.

Instead of screaming at the government (We want a miracle!) for more money, we the students and not the administrators should solicit private corporations for funds to be handed outright to the respective student-faculty administrations of the universities. The resulting influx of capital would relieve the tight money situation in the government and ultimately on the taxpayer.

Solicitations for the money would not be as hard as imagined. In 1963, the administration of Trent University found themselves without proper funds to receive a capital grant from the federal government. The Trent University Founding Fund launched an appeal to the residents of Peterboro. In approximately eight months, they had received $1,520,000 from local and national donors without the aid of the government. Colonel Sam McLaughlan of Oshawa has donated McLaughlan College of York University and the McLaughlan Planetarium on Queens Park. If the students were to solicit other philanthropists and the general public, the student image could only improve and the present administration could not reject further requests for representation. With little work by all students the system has a chance.

If a few more advanced students researched major corporations and solicited money on the grounds that it would better the quality of future engineers, administrators, and executives, it would not take too many company donations to build up a substantial fund. If that approach did not work, we could ask the large business interests to donate only 2% of the revenue that would have originally been put into the dead capital gain tax. The donation from each contributing firm would be small and tax deductible. The money would go straight to the university and there would be no overhead or pay for civil servants as the universities already have the staff and the empty vaults.

If any student government on any U. of T. campus would be willing to hash out such a proposal, I for one would offer my services.

We of the Erindalian are open for replies.

The Time for Residences is Now

When the first plans for Erindale College were drawn up, it was originally intended that we would become strictly a commuter college with no residences. Since that time, plans have been changed and in the brief that Principal Wilson presented to the Committee on University Affairs, the new blueprints for Erindale included a block of five residence buildings which are to be built adjacent to the proposed academic buildings. However, while the construction of academic buildings has begun almost on schedule, as yet no firm plans or commitments have been made for the commencement of construction of a residence.

The Erindalian believes that the time for residences at Erindale is now and not some time in the ill-defined future. Our college has within its grasp, the opportunity to establish a true academic community where students will not have to continue punching a clock in at 9, out at 5. A high school atmosphere and attitude has prevailed here since the college opened its doors. Students come only for their lectures and there is no desire to remain after hours for discussion, research or special lectures which have been arranged for them.

We believe that the immediate establishment of permanent residences will eradicate these problems and provide our community with an atmosphere more conducive to higher learning. We further believe that this goal can and must be achieved while most of our present student body is still here. Because, if we wait any longer, we will have a difficult time in destroying an attitude which is becoming more firmly embedded with every passing day.

The fact that the present college building was put up in considerably less than a year proves that some type of residence can be ready for the 1970-71 academic year, when our first year class will be in their third year. Certainly, financing a new building is a major consideration but we suggest that whatever financial problems that may be encountered now will be encountered in six or seven or ten years as well. But by then, the great opportunity which confronts us now will have slipped through our fingers.

We strongly urge Principal Wilson, Dean Robinson, The E.C.C. and the Students Facilities to take this matter under their immediate consideration so that plans and construction may commence as quickly as possible.

World University Services of Canada Presents

Countdown

From May 18, to May 31, 1969 at Rochdale, the World University Services of Canada presents its Symposium '69 called Countdown. This is an annual event held in a different country each year. This year there will be about three-hundred participants. There will be Canadian and foreign students, academics and people from the community.

The intention of the Symposium this year is to focus equally on matters outside and inside North America. It will be organized within three related topics: Industrialism and Third World Problems; an Analysis of Industrialized Society; and the Future Environment of Man.

The method of the Symposium will follow that of the "Free University". Major lectures will be given but most of the time will be devoted to open discussion and debate. Considerable use will be made of the city as well as the arts.

Many interesting people have been invited to the Symposium, among them are: Leo Cadieux Lester B. Pearson U. Thant
Earle Birney Claude Bissel Buckminster Fuller
Eric Fromm Eugene McCarthy Rene Levesque
Marshall McLuhan Pierre Elliot Trudeau Richard Needham and many others.

The Symposium is not a loose attempt at Internationalism but a highly academic venture into the problems of today. The participants for the event are selected on their merit. For every 1200 university students only one is chosen and the selection is open to all universities in Canada. For more information please contact Brian Jones or Doug Leeies to obtain an application.

Well, people this is the second place poem in the contest. Our Brian is on the road with Murder in the Cathedral and so we have had to do without his words of wisdom for this week.

Apology

Your tears are warm.
I wished my will as hard
And cold as winter ground
And I so numb to self-disgust
That tears from you should shatter
Uselessly upon my armour
Like so much brittle laughter.

But how your tears were warm!

Though bitter cold the ice within me,
I tell you none should fight with frost
Unless he be more heartless
Than his own humanity.

I melted altogether long ago
For love of you;
And then again this afternoon.

Hockey

Erindale defeated U.C. Wednesday night in an exciting game in which the Wendigoes came from behind a two goal deficit to win 3-2. All Erindales goals came in the last ten minutes. Goals were scored by Mastromatteo (the winner) and Chylinski (2). Next Thursday night Erindale plays Scarborough College our arch-rivals. Be on hand to support your team and see Erindale move into second place.

Basketball

Hats off to the Basketball team who defeated Brock University's Varsity team 89-87. It seems that this team can beat anybody they want when they put their minds to it (a quote from Sprogis).

Ski-Weekend

This weekend the skiers led by Armstrong and Company invade Hidden Valley for two days of skiing, etc? Conditions are expected to be good (spring) so everybody take your wax.

Girls Hockey

Last week the "Beavers" played at the rain-soaked rink at Glendon College and tied York 1-1. Roma Bilkis scored for the "Beavers". Coach Robb expressed dissatisfaction at the performance of the Beavers and expects big things in the future.

Girls Volleyball

The girls played their first two games of this years tournament-one against POTS and the other against Phys Ed. They won both games. Keep it up girls!

The First E.L.C.C. Winter Rally

There was a forwarning that last Saturday's Erindale Light Car Club Winter Rally was not going to be as easy as the planners had thought. George Raab must have had some divine revelation of the result that only 8 out of the 13 starters were going to finish because he arrived with two built in excuses - an odometer with no tenths of a mile units and his girlfriend navigator. His predestination was born out. Only 9 cars made it to the second checkpoint and 7 to the last checkpoint within the one hour allowance.

Emerging victorious in a Sprite was the team of Dave Brean and Norm Smith with 24 points. Second were K. Godevenos and S. Williams in an Austin (40 points) and third place was taken by a Mustang manned by M. Auger and A. Cloke.

The excuses were worthy of imaginative young minds. Dan Bolger (Sci. I) of Erindale had a tall story of meeting a Buffalo herd in the Caledon Hills. Mike Beamish and the "Erindalian's" own Nanci Wakeman tried to add the already cumulative mileages with disastrous results.

The E.L.C.C. may plan a rally for later this term and they are hoping for a better response - the more the merrier!

The Roach Says "Holy Hoax"!

Would you like to come to a seance? Officials attending will be: Susan Crowe, P.H. Dinwitchcraft, Sofia M.D. Gremlin, Barry Huston and "Devil" or Adrian as he is called by his spiritual friends. The seance will be held the 13th of February, Room 213 at 11 P.M, at which time St. Valentine's spirit will be summoned. Guests are requested to wear black or red. Please bring your own candle.

O P I N I O N

Some people have attacked Billy Graham for his not taking part in the civil rights issues of the last 5 to 10 years.

I do not wish to make an outright defence of Mr. Graham. Confront him yourself and he will defend Billy Graham much better than I could. I do however, wish to point to a larger issue, the examining of which will answer your queries concerning Billy Graham.

The "issue" of life will not be decided on the political or economic or social level but on the moral level. Every man, whether he be endowed with great gifts in the realms of politics, physics, economics (any field), or not, must answer this basic question: "What think ye of Christ?" Matthew 22:42. Only one answer is acceptable and Peter gave it in Matthew 16:16, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God." Once a man has settled this question in his heart, then he can enter his particular work and serve God properly - "in Spirit and in Truth".

I do not know the answers to the many problems facing the North American society and indeed the world today. It will take a good economist or political theorist or sociologist to do that, but even these people will not solve the issues until they have answered that question posed by Jesus Himself to the Pharisees.

Billy Graham is an evangelist, called of God to lead men to Christ - all types of men. These people can then enter society and properly serve God and their fellowmen.

The Scriptures make it clear that God is for us - not against us (John 3:16-17; Matthew 18:11, Psalm 8). When the corrupt nature of man is done away with via the cross of Christ and one's faith in Him, the world's problems will begin to be solved.
